

Keep Your Appointment Tomorrow, Red Cross Blood Bank, March 9

Tomorrow the American Red Cross Blood Bank will be in Sierra Madre for the 12th time to accept our share of blood to go to the fighting forces at the front lines.

On 10 of the previous 11 visits, Sierra Madreans have given at least their minimum quota. The other visit when the quota was not made must never happen again.

The local volunteer workers have done all they can possibly do in contacting people and getting appointments filled. Now, it's up to you, who have made those appointments, to see that those appointments are kept. If you cannot keep your appointment, find someone else to go in your place.

At the last visit of the Blood Bank, 39 persons failed to keep their appointments—which meant that 39 pints of blood failed to reach our wounded men. Will you keep YOUR appointment?

Mrs. Marjorie Peterson has volunteered to look after children at the Woman's clubhouse while mothers are donating their blood. There will be toys from Toy Loan to keep them occupied and happy and if the day is warm and sunny, small tables and chairs will be set up in the club patio. The usual well-trained staff of local volunteers will be in assistance to the mobile unit.

They will be: Reception, Rosalie Goodwin, Catherine Dowling, Jean Kearney, Virginia John, Marjorie O'Donnell.

Hemoglobin Room: Alice Jones, Beatrice Strite, Margaret McCullough.

Donor Room: Billie Ward, Amy Adams, Irma Miller.

Assistants to Nurses: Ruth Blakeman, Edna Barkman, Harriet Dodge.

Coat Room: Beatrice Pratt, Lella Embree, Betty Metrick.

Motor Corps: Grace Lewis, Mattie Spencer.

Registration: Florence Peterson, Margaret Miller.

Donor Badges: Mrs. Milo Murray.

Publicity: Glean Drury.

Children's Nursery: Marjorie Peterson.

Canteen Director, Leona Woehler, will have assisting her: Nina Leisher, Fritz Woehler, Lucille Nollac, Molly Weber, Gertrude Clougherty, Agnes Stringfellow, Pat Wilcox, Gladys Merriman, Anna Schultz.

The oranges which will provide the orange juice for the Blood Bank are being donated by General and Mrs. Edward Clinton Young.

Remember—tomorrow, March 9, time—8:40 a.m. until 12:40 p.m., at the Woman's clubhouse—give your Gift of Life!

Death Takes Winter Visitor

While spending the winter in California, Harold Waid Cochran of Rhineclander, Wis., passed away at 646 W. Highland. He with his wife, Mrs. Marie Cochran, by whom he is survived, have been in the city four months. Mr. Cochran was born in Greenville, Pa., 56 years ago. There is a son, Samuel B. Cochran, S. 1/c, of the U.S.C.G.; daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Thayer, Sierra Madre; Mrs. Marie Ladd and Miss Anna-bell Cochran of Hinsdale, Ill., and sons, Lt. Harold W. Cochran, U.S.N., and Capt. Philip Cochran of the U.S. Marine Corps; a sister, Mrs. J. Clarke Bell of Greensburg, Pa., and five grandchildren. Episcopal services were read at the Grant chapel Sunday at 2 p.m. and interment will be at Hinsdale, Ill.

Two People are Saved from Asphyxiation

The new resuscitator recently purchased by the funds raised by the Firemen's Ball proved its value and without question saved the lives of two Sierra Madre residents Thursday evening.

The police received a call to the home of Carlyle McIntyre and his sister, Mrs. Ruth Wood, at 498 Manzanita, where they found the two people unconscious from lack of oxygen and from asphyxiation. Officers Fairchild and Heasley and Jos. Swanson responded with the resuscitator and for an hour gave them treatments and they responded to an extent. The officers were unable to get a physician from this city, Arcadia or Monrovia, and so sent their patients to St. Luke's hospital by ambulance where they are reported to be making a satisfactory recovery.

Mrs. Nellie McIntyre, a sister, was ill at her home next door and when no one came to care for her, she started an investigation and called the officers.

Sgt. Edw. L. McElwain, whose wife lives at 165 E. Mira Monte, has received his wings and graduated at the gunnery school at Harlingen, Tex. He will continue with his training another five months in preparation for B-24 machine gunner.

RED CROSS WAR FUND WORKERS MEET EAGERNESS TO GIVE FROM BIG-HEARTED SIERRA MADREANS

F. J. Adams Invades Luzon On an L.S.T.

More and more news is coming home about the Sierra Madre boys who are making history today. Mr. and Mrs. Percy Adams, 265 San Gabriel, have received word from their son, Frank J. Adams, F 1/c, that he was in one of the three convoys on an L.S.T. which invaded Luzon. Frank, who has lived all of his 20 years in Sierra Madre, was a Wilson and P.J.C. student. He received his naval training at Farragut, Ida.

With the Tanks at Iwo Jima

Another wife is anxiously waiting to hear from her husband, Mrs. Lawrence Gonzalez of E. Grand View. Sgt. Gonzalez is presumed to be in the Iwo Jima campaign, being with the 5th Marine Tank Division. He was a member of the State Guard a year previous to his entry in the service. Mrs. Gonzalez, mother of a 10-month-old son, was the former Alice Castaneda.

Called to Miami by Death of Lt. Hart

Mrs. E. G. Everett, 249 W. Highland, was called to Miami, Fla., by the death of her grandson, Lt. Wm. H. Hart of the Army Air Service. Lt. Hart, a bomber pilot, was reported as "Missing in Action" over Germany. His command is stationed at an Italian base and he had been making missions over Germany. His wife, Mrs. Hart, is living in Miami and is in a serious condition due to shock. Mrs. Everett made the trip by American Airways via Ft. Worth and New Orleans.

Dogs that have been honorably discharged from war service soon will be given license tags by the county at no cost.

Repatriated Prisoners Give Heartening Reports to Kin of Prisoners of War and Men Listed as 'Missing in Action'

Splendid Morale Among Prisoners

A number of Sierra Madre kin of U.S. prisoners of war and of men reported as "missing in action" attended a meeting Sunday evening at the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles, where several thousands of parents and other relatives from all over Los Angeles county listened to nearly a dozen returned prisoners of war from the Western and Far Eastern P.O.W. camps who related their experiences, their treatment, and answered the many questions which arise in the minds of every person with relatives in the armed services. The speakers from the service were, of course, either invalided exchanges or escapees.

Some of the points brought out which were most significant for the guidance and morale of kin of all men in foreign service were as follows:

(1) The chances that men reported as "missing in action" will turn up alive—either as prisoners of war or as escapees—is at least 70 per cent, to date, and the percentage may be higher, for men are showing up now in the Philippines who have been missing for three years. (The percentage for Sierra Madre service men reported "missing in action" has been much higher than 70 per cent already.) Men captured on the German front have shown up alive after as many as 17 months.

(2) Persons in this country who have reason to believe that their kin in German prison camps have been moved or that the camp itself has been moved (away from the Russian front) are advised to keep on writing to the old camp address until they are given a new one. "Write regularly and repeat your news," was the general advice, "the only thing the boys in prisons worry about is you—Are they well at home, are thinking of me and believing that I will come home to them?" The prisoners' morale among themselves is splendid on both fronts, the repatriates emphasized, and their immensely by showing an equal morale and writing them cheerful messages as often as the traffic allows (one or two brief letters weekly to German camps; the 24-word message to Far Eastern prison camps, once or twice monthly).

(3) When, as now happens with increasing frequency, relatives receive messages directly from a prison camp lad before notification has reached them from our government, they should mail the message or a photostat copy of it directly to the "Office of Provost

Los Angeles Buyer Outbids Realty Co. Post-War Project

The 1000-acre Hastings Ranch, just west of Sierra Madre, was sold Monday to John R. Murphy, Los Angeles construction company executive, for $1,175,000, the sale being approved by Superior Judge Collier in the Probate Court. This price was $122,369 more than the original bid of the Junior Realty Co., whose recent offer of $1,052,631 put the property up for bidding.

Requests were made for a two weeks' continuance of the sale by telegrams from large interests in Merchantville, N.J., and also in Camden, N.J., but they were denied inasmuch as they were not accompanied by any definite offers.

Attorney Hahn offered a bid for Mr. Murphy for $1,160,000 and the Junior Realty Co. raised it to $1,168,420.41. Mr. Murphy then offered $1,175,000 and no more bids being presented, Judge Collier declared the property sold.

Mr. Murphy stated that the property was purchased for high-type suburban residential purposes and will be developed in keeping with the residential nature of Rancho Santa Anita. Plans for development already are prepared but it will be a postwar project.

"The Hastings Ranch represents the last large acreage in the metropolitan area that is suitable for high-grade community control development in keeping with the postwar planning for this area," Mr. Murphy said. "It is the outstanding acreage of the county and we will develop it in keeping with the high-type home development for which this area is recognized."

H. R. Baker, realty broker, who arranged the sale, stated he understands that in the development of the property Mr. Murphy will associate himself with his brothers, Frank A. and Edwin W. Murphy, who are affiliated with him in Murphy Brothers, Ltd.; Fritz B. Burns, member of Marlowe-Burns Development Company and last year president of the National Association of Home Builders of the United States; Edwin W. Pauley of San Marino, president of the Petrol Oil Company, and Fred Pike, public accountant.

Mr. Baker, who is a former chairman of the Pasadena City Planning Commission, said:

"The new owners are planning a high-type, controlled development in keeping with this beautiful Southern California acreage. I feel this will be one of the outstanding postwar developments in the county."

Asakura Gardens Sold as Owner Joins Armed Forces

Harold J. Spears has purchased 10 acres of land at the north end of Sunnyside of Jin Asakura, whose family (Japanese) has owned the property about 20 years and maintained it as a wholesale cut flower nursery. Mr. Spears plans to develop the site as residential property and will subdivide it into about 40 lots.

The Spears have resided at 425 Sunnyside, which is on the property, and he has operated a fryer plant, selling about 12,000 pounds of chicken a month. The plot is considered one of the prettiest 10 acres in the city.

Mr. Asakura, the former owner, is going into the Army this month.

Marshall General, Dept. of P.O.W., Washington 25, D.C. The statistics will be returned after the statistics are recorded in Washington. This includes cases of men originally reported to relatives by our government as men "missing in action."

"Being a prisoner of war anywhere is no picnic," the repatriates agreed, but over their spirits are high and going higher. The password most frequently heard among our prisoners in Germany is, "It won't be long now!" Amusing anecdotes were told by the repatriates about their experiences in camps on both fronts, their comradeship, their makeshifts to vary the routine of monotonous diet—one of the Far Eastern prisoners with his buddies working in the fields killed a 12-foot python and that evening, he said, "There was chicken in the pot!" Lacking fat to fry the small frogs they caught, a bright prisoner served "Frog Legs a la Barbasol"—"and they were good, too!" Red Cross weekly food packages and 60-day Next of Kin parcels have meant more than can be expressed in words. And this meaning meant more to the hope and morale of next of kin than can be expressed here.—(Edward Voorhees, Home Service Committee, P.O.W., Sierra Madre Chapter, American Red Cross.)

EXTRA! Local Man is Freed from Jap Prison

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Bratton, 775 Skyland Dr., received word Tuesday evening that their son, Chas. Henley Bratton, a civilian prisoner of war held by the Japanese since January 4, 1942, has been liberated. He has been held at the Los Banos prison, which was the last prison in the Manila area to be liberated. Mr. and Mrs. Bratton heard nothing from their son for the first five months of his confinement until he was removed to Los Banos from Santo Tomas, when a friend sent word to them of his location. They have worried beyond measure, even wondering if he were alive. He eked out an existence at the camp by operating a circulating library and disposing of the garbage which meant digging ditches in which to bury it. Mr. Bratton has lived in Manila several years, was purchasing agent for the Pacific Air Base Construction Co. and before that represented a New York exporting company.

Mrs. Bratton received the news of the delivery on her birthday and when asked how she felt today, she replied, "O, I can scarcely believe it is really true. I have laughed and cried all day." Los Banos was the prison about 40 miles south of Manila, an old agricultural college, taken by MacArthur's paratroopers.

CHARLES GARLAND

One of the Judges and Master of Ceremonies is one of Hollywood's best known motion-picture and radio agents. Though well known in Hollywood it has never been previously published that credit for the discovery of Margaret O'Brien, eight-year-old screen star, must go to Garland. He was the first person to showcase her to the public on the radio which led to her meteoric film career. Also, when Frank Morgan, Clark Gable, Olivia De Havilland, Charles Laughton and numerous other stars appear on the radio, it is Garland's doings.

BONNIE CASHIN

Bonnie Cashin, 20th Century Fox's famous costume designer of such pictures as "Laura," "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" and "Keys to the Kingdom," has recently signed a long-time contract with the studio. Dark, petite and personally as chic as a designer is supposed to be, Bonnie has been turning out super-costumes, both period and modern, for this company, since August, 1943.

Kiwanians Discuss Many Civic Problems

At the Kiwanis meeting Tuesday, Rev. Frederic Groetsema was the speaker of the day and gave a program on what G.I. Joe and C.I. Jane are thinking about and what they want to come home to. It was based on a number of recorded interviews with service boys. "Did you ever wonder what a soldier thinks about?" These boys spoke right out in meeting and discussed the church, family, friends, jobs, communities, etc. It is said our youngsters are maturing at the rate of seven years in two in this conflict. They are doing a lot of thinking. This will be an important factor in their adjustment to civilian life. We must take an interest in them when they return and treat them as mature individuals, making allowance for their experience, and realizing that they are no longer the carefree lads they were when they left.

Bruce McGill urged that people be impressed with their responsibility to the Blood Bank. "Don't cancel your reservations," he said. "Our boys in the Pacific can't cancel theirs. It is equally important that you don't cancel yours."

Mr. McGill also asked for an expression as to the advisability of purchasing additional land for recreational purposes, stating that the members probably represent a good cross section of the views

Postmaster Thomas Durning reminds the public to mail their income tax returns March 15, that in order to have the letter bearing a Sierra Madre post mark as of March 15, the letter must be in the post office before 5:30 of that day. The same applies to dates on money orders.

PRESS-RADIO BREAKFAST AT THE VINE MARCH 13; QUEEN WILL BE CROWNED

Cold Weather Delays the Opening Date

Great interest is being taken in the selection of a Queen and her Court to preside over the festivities of the 53rd Annual Wistaria Vine Fete, over 35 girls having already entered the contest.

The Queen and her Court will be guests of honor at the Press-Radio Breakfast sponsored by the Woman's Club of Sierra Madre at 10 a.m., March 13, under the famed spreading Wistaria Vine. In case of inclement weather the breakfast will be held indoors at the Vine.

The five Sierra Madre girls, finalists in the contest, will share the spotlight with the notable board of Hollywood Judges, representing the motion-picture industry, who will select the Queen and her attendants.

SILVER CROWN FOR PRINCESS
A silver crown is being made to be worn by the Queen at festivities over which she will preside during the fete. When she has finished her reign she will be given a miniature of the crown on a plaque, her name will be inscribed on the crown and it will be passed on to succeeding Queens in like manner.

An invitation has been extended to the Queen and her Court by E. Eugene Lunsford, president of the Kiwanis club, to be guests at their luncheon Tuesday noon, the same day as the Breakfast, and other events and surprises are being planned for the favored five.

THE BREAKFAST
Attendance at the Breakfast is reserved for representatives from the Southland's press, radio and magazines. The program will be broadcast from a Hollywood radio station and photographers will cover the event for news releases.

OPENING POSTPONED
The date for the opening of the Vine Gardens to the public has been postponed on account of the cold weather which has delayed the date when it was thought the Vine would be in full bloom. Watch for announcement of opening date in this paper.

TOO LATE FOR NEW PICTURES
Girls who did not have suitable pictures were notified, as far as possible, to be at the Vine last Sunday morning where a photographer took shots of those present. The management announces that it is now too late to have new pictures taken and made in time for the judging. All contestants who have not submitted pictures are requested to send in any they may have, photos or snapshots, regardless of size.

THE ENTRIES
Contestants in the Queen contest to date include:

Around & About

By EDWARD LLOYD VOORHEES

ISCHIA—The island of Ischia (pronounced EESkia) is the largest of four which serve to complete the outline of what appears to be the vast, extinct, and submerged volcanic crater, oval in shape and some 20 miles across in its greatest diameter, which is known the world over as the beautiful Bay of Naples. Lying about 13 miles southwest of the terraced city of Naples, Ischia is roughly the shape of a very bumpy egg and about 18 miles in circumference, from the center of which rises the cone, over 2500 feet high, of Mt. Epomeo, a volcano inactive since 1301, and listed as "extinct"—but you never can tell! About 15 miles southeast across the open sea lies the more famous and fashionable Isle of Capri, which is about 18 miles due south of Naples across the open sea, each of three points—Naples, Ischia, and Capri—providing, on a clear day, an astoundingly beautiful view of the other two, the melting blue skies of Italy above, the sparkling ultramarine blue floor of the bay dotted with the white sails of small pleasure boats and the larger, patched and multi-colored sails of the fishermen's and produce boats.

Naples being for the moment the hub of my various excursions, one fine June morning I packed the one suitcase in which I had learned to carry all my belongings, and boarded the little produce and passenger steamer for Ischia. I was on a vagabond vacation from another year of teaching in a small and compact country college, and I was consequently alert for novelty, strangeness, beauty, adventure, and the Fifth Freedom—"footloose and fancy free." Ever since the age of five, when I formed the habit of running away daily with the neighbor's terrier to the wooded stream on the other side of town, I had wanted to know what lies beyond the horizon and how the people over there look, how they live, and what they say. This vague but irrepressible yearning gradually merged with a young and growing passion for history—at first, battles and fighting heroes, then adding the study of what man has done in religions, in arts and crafts, in government, in science, in manners and customs.

Though Ischia presents nothing of a highly spectacular nature, its layout, its friendly people, its evidences of mythological and historical background provided an instructive and diverting weekend. In the little town with the mouth-filling name of Cassamicciola where I debarked, my modest and comfortable hotel—at which I was the only guest at dinner that evening—was conducted by a smiling and attentive couple who served a perfect meal and responded heartily and good-naturedly to my halting and sketchy Italian. Signora Concetto, who greeted me when I returned to the lounge, was a remarkable old lady in appearance and character, her face formed in heroic lines, her Italian eyes large, dark, luminous or sparkling by turns, depending upon the moment's mood or topic. It was the great sorrow of her life that she and her big husband had remained childless. In the earthquake of 1883 they had both been injured, narrowly escaping death under the ruins of their hotel, when she had pulled her unconscious husband from under a pile of debris, meanwhile holding up a section of falling wall with her own back until help came.

During the next two days I went bathing from the pebbly beach beyond the little Piazza (public square), walked or drove in a carriage along the meandering sea wall in both directions from the town, visited the ancient mineral baths, in one of which was a representation in tiled mosaic of Nero at the arena and some copies of Pompeian frescoes, and took long walks inland and along the cart-road, well enough paved to satisfy the very rare motorist who frightened all the horses and his exhaust. One of the most amusing and touching sights of the island was the daily spectacle of a man whose prized possession was a brood of five little pigs which he herded down to the waterfront each morning to feed upon the refuse and garbage of the port. One could almost see them grow!

On my final afternoon I walked to the extreme eastern end of the island, skirting on the way an extensive grove of tall and majestic "umbrella" (stone) pines, the freshening sea breeze making soft music through their crowns. Beyond these pines, the great Epomeo, said by mythology to be the result of the anger of the giant Typhoeus, when his peaceful abode on Ischia was disturbed by Jupiter's thunderbolts. I reached and crossed the narrow causeway some fifth of a mile long which connects the little town of Ischia with the islet upon which stands, on an elevation, the 15th century castle of Alphonso of Aragon. It was here, high above the sea, in 1509, that Vittoria Colonna, brilliant and beautiful great lady of the Renaissance, wed the one great love of her life, Ferrante of Pescara; it was here that she waited long years for him to come back from the wars of Emperor Charles V, and it was here that she returned from Rome after receiving the news of his death from a wound at Milan before she could reach his side. And here she remained for many years in her widowhood, declining several offers of brilliant marriages. And on an opposite cliff there stands the stone tower with a high window toward the castle, from which, legend says, Michael Angelo used to greet the sunrise and wait for a glimpse of the great lady whose beauty of body and soul was the inspiration of some of his finest sonnets and of the greatest friendship of his life.

DIVING FOR THE FLEET SINCE PEARL HARBOR

DIVER JOHN ZELLER, whose home is on W. Mira Monte Ave., is one of the heroic men repairing ships at the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard.

Daily facing the dangers of diving, John Zeller, W. Mira Monte Ave., Sierra Madre, keeps going deep into Pearl Harbor to inspect and repair the ships of the Pacific Fleet.

He has been doing this work since before the Jap attack on December 7, 1941, and since that time has worked on all the damaged ships which were restored to fighting condition.

A member of the busy civilian diving crew at the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard, Zeller is called upon daily for many emergencies. The 34-year-old diver meets a new experience every time he takes a dip.

ROUND THE TOWN

◆ Mrs. K. Anthony and small son of Miami, Fla., are visiting Mrs. Anthony's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Anthony, 94 W. Mira Monte.

◆ Six Bethany ladies, Mesdames Obanion, Montgomery, DeLong, White, Gebb and Sea, served at the Canteen of the Victory Service club in Los Angeles last Thursday. In the two and one-half years that the club has been operating they have served 1,000,000 men. The club is equipped with showers, beds, baths and every home-like convenience that men back from service enjoy. Everything is free and it is said that the only thing soldiers can pay for is postage stamps.

◆ The C. F. Burmeisters, former residents of Sierra Madre, have written from Elmwood Park, Ill., to have the News mailed to them, saying as soon as circumstances permit they hope to again live here, as they have never found a place they liked as well. Mr. Burmeister is to be transferred to the Los Angeles area in the near future.

◆ Miss Christina Steck of Pasadena spent the day with friends in the city last week.

◆ "Fun in Foods" and the new Walt Disney technicolor film "Defense Against Invasion" will be shown to the pupils of the Sierra Madre school Thursday morning, March 15, at nine o'clock, by the Los Angeles County Health department, according to Mrs. Hortense Wells, school nurse.

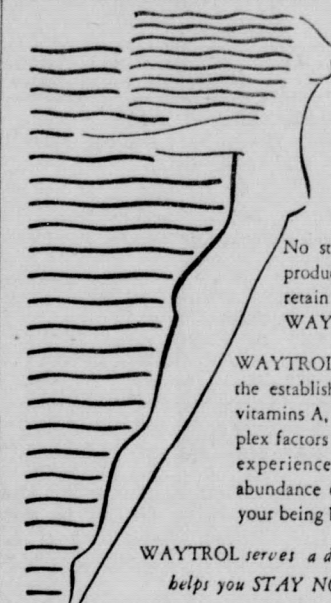

◆ Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Galli of South Pasadena will show some beautiful and interesting pictures of camellias at the meeting of the Garden club Monday evening. There will also be some fine exhibits of local camellias and the ladies are requested to wear these flowers "Camellia Night." Phone Mrs. McTavish, 6872, for reservations.

◆ Mrs. Elizabeth Staff of Hollywood is the guest this week of Mrs. Hortense Hill, 251 S. Baldwin. Mrs. Staff was a resident of Sierra Madre when her husband, the late Dr. Fred Staff, was pastor of the Congregational church, and has many old friends here.

◆ Rev. and Mrs. O. J. Scheibe, who have been spending the winter with their daughter, Mrs. Frederic Groetsema, left yesterday for the East. Rev. Scheibe will open his church at North Granby, Conn., Easter Sunday if snow conditions permit.

◆ Lovetta Pratt will be hostess to the American Legion Auxiliary this evening (Thursday) at her home, 359 Grove St.

United Nations Peace Meeting

The designation of San Francisco as the meeting place for the momentous United Nations Peace Conference on April 25 is not only a unique tribute for the City of the Golden State, but it is also a recognition of the growing importance of the State of California and the Pacific Basin.

Every community in our State should feel that it has a share in the honor which the historic gathering will bring to the West Coast. This conference may prove to be the most important in all history. Here the representatives of 39 nations will gather to lay the foundation of a lasting peace. If they succeed in building a sound foundation—and the world must pray that they will—the name of San Francisco will be synonymous with a new era of "peace on earth, good will toward men."

The geographical importance of California as the gateway to the Orient has already been brought into sharp focus by the announcement of the meeting. Primarily, however, the selection of a California city for an event of such world importance emphasizes the fact that the Golden State has become a world center in business, finance, farming and trade.

California farm products are sold around the world; California's multi-billion-dollar movie industry is world-wide in scope; California's biggest bank with resources of approximately $4,500,000,000 is the world's second largest bank; ships from California ports sail the seven seas. Our yards and factories have turned out many hundreds of vessels, many thousands of planes.

Years ago it was predicted that the Pacific Coast would eventually become the center of American population, business and industry. We Californians have always had faith in the greatness of our State.

The choice of San Francisco as the meeting place for the Peace Conference confirms that faith.

Iwo Jima

With American Marines now firmly established on Iwo Jima, Emperor Hirohito can almost feel the hot breath of an avenging enemy blowing down his royal neck.

This time it isn't possible for the Japs to laugh off their defeat with the claim that the territory taken by our troops is of no real importance. Next to the Japanese homeland itself, we have landed on the spot that hurts the most.

When American superforts are able to use the island they can hit Tokyo with much heavier bomb loads than formerly, since the amount of gasoline necessary for such a trip will be cut in half. Medium bombers will also be able to make the trip and our long-range fighters can provide escort protection. The Nips are also deprived of Iwo Jima as a base for their own fighter planes which were able to attack our B-29's going to and from the Japanese Capital.

This latest hop toward Tokyo reminds us that three years ago at this time the military shoe was on the other foot. Singapore had fallen in mid-February and everywhere in the Far East Allied troops were retreating before the surge of the little yellow man.

Even as recently as a year ago we had penetrated only the outer fringe of Japan's stolen empire. At that time, in February, 1944, we made our first attack on Truk. Take a look at the map and you'll better appreciate the progress made in the past 12 months.

The presence of our forces on Japan's front door step doesn't mean that the war in the Pacific is all but finished. Every step nearer Tokyo is a much harder step.

America's full effort—physically and spiritually—is still absolutely necessary. Victory will come, but it must be fought and prayed for.

PEN SKETCHES

By LEE MCCARTY

PAMBO
Pambo was a man after my own heart. He'd been, let us say, a gentleman-of-fortune. He had walked up and down the earth and drunk deep and dangerously of the cup. He had rubbed elbows with black superstition and ignorance. And now he had roamed down the years to sit solemly in an armchair and use me as a sounding board.

Those were wonderful days. Pambo sat in the sunshine of our California patio and sketched a life that held me by its elemental charm. His tales were rough-shod, startling, and finally revealing; always incredible until he let the light break in upon me. His pale blue eyes, squinted from many a tropic sun, would sparkle and the crows' feet at their ancient corners expressed so much.

Pambo was about 90 years of age—perhaps more. He told me of a time when he pitched a two-man camp with Cecil Rhodes on the high rolling veldt of South Africa. I was amazed when he informed me H. Rider Haggard's "She" was in reality a woman—supposed by the ignorant Zulus to be immortal—who lived in the wild hills surrounded by black subjects; believed immortal because when she died another white girl was secretly put in her place generation after generation. Yes, Pambo could re-paint Johannesburg as a noisy, bawling gold town—a time when he had captured big vorooper apes and sold them to the Boers to be trained to lead oxen which pulled the immense wagons through the streets and across the veldt. I sat spellbound as he yarned about the ghost on a Boer farm. Stories mingled with a medley of color poured from this old man. He also told me he had hunted the white rhinoceros, taken the horn, worth its weight in gold, and shipped this to China where it was ground down into a drug and sold to rich mandarins as a remedy to restore old men to virility.

Pambo had kicked up some sand in his time. He'd embraced the Darwin doctrine after having seen the chimpanzees have their "high and low" or dance by moonlight. He was proud that he had talked with King Nduromo at his sitting place. But what clings most vividly to my memory is his story about those mysterious whippers which came off the surface of the Itimber River.

I could never induce the ancient explorer to have lunch with me. He waved me away. He would dig into his pocket and drag out a half dozen dates. "Aye," he'd say, "this is plenty for a meal. The Arabs live on six or eight a day, and I've seen camels and dogs eat 'em. Draw up your chair and I'll tell you about the whippers on the Itimber."

Mission Nduromo has now become what Pambo calls "rare cobweb history." Accounts of this expedition, dry and exacting in wintry blue-ink maps, may be found in governmental archives in Belgium. The goal came under the guise of a quest for the lost mines of Queen Sheba. King Leopold had a genius for creating interest among capable back-country freebooters who made it their business to pull dollars from a wild environment. Secretly Leopold was seeking information regarding country unexplored beyond the Belgian Congo. What were the possibilities materially in rich natural resources in the form of ivory, gum-copal, ebony, dye-woods, and so on? This monarch had already harvested millions of dollars in such raw materials—out of a territory considered by the world to be useless.

"No wonder then," said Pambo, "that Leopold laughed up his sleeve at those reports Stanley sent to England!"

Majacuna Pambo—named by the low-coast tribes because of a partially bald pate—became the central pivot to search for the lost mines of Queen Sheba, traveling up Congo, Itimber, Uele and Ruby rivers. He had been selected through the Netherlands Consular Service in Johannesburg because of his wide African experience not only as a mining engineer and elephant hunter (for Sheffield Cutters), but also because he knew jungles, could speak many dialects, and had the uncanny sense one must have to survive in uncharted territory.

He selected only one white man to accompany him—a fellow or Dutchman by name of Lembeck who smoked a potclay pipe which could be smelled against the wind and who had a game leg, chewed up by a lion in the ruins of Mashonaland.

Both white men arrived at La Neuville Anvers in the year 1887-'89(?), then a diminutive trading French concession on the Congo. The paddle steamer could travel no farther, for here the river widened to about 30 miles and was impassable due to many shallows and sandbars.

The "wall-eyed" Frenchy who ran the post, Pambo told me, was a hard bargainer. But they managed to get a large 40-foot plume from him. Several miles up-river was a village of the Asandee tribe. They were well received here and gave the chief several substantial barbies of tobacco. The chief was found in his zariba sprawled out in a hammock, two of his black wives rubbing his huge stomach to force out belches while another poured pome from a calabash down his throat. He was quite drunk but able to understand what the two white men wanted. Lembeck had their boy Ball-bundo bring up one Chesopot Snider rifle, several punk and wheel guns—pieces ancient and antiquated—and cumbrous moneys of bright beads. Pambo asked the chief for 20 men and one stern-sheet drummer to carry them up Itimber to a Franciscan post. Their wish was granted, despite the fact that the medicine man, decked out in parrot feathers and bright clay, went through considerable hocus-pocus, arguing to the chief that nothing but evil prevailed upon the Itimber. The voices of bad spirits had been heard by hunters to whisper off the face of the waters. Lembeck used good judgment.

POLICE BLOTTER

Man phoned a woman, a wild sort of person, with a Bible and religious papers, had entered his house and he wanted her out. Mrs. Senour, 81 E. Grand View, called for help. In backing around the yard she had run into a water pipe and broke it off and a gusher resulted. Vern Udell to the rescue. Lady called station and said her husband had gone to church in Arcadia and wasn't home yet, at 10:35 p.m. He showed up at 10:50. Mrs. Ruby Cass, 187 N. Sunnyside, reports house entered and ransacked but apparently nothing missing. Probably hunting for hidden treasure, points or something. Lady called that a water pipe had broken somewhere in the house and water was running everywhere. Could take a shower bath in any room in the house. Udell again rescues lady in distress. Mrs. Mary C. Parlin, 74, 47 N. Auburn, fainted on the Tarr estate, 274 W. Montecito, Monday. Taken to a physician and then to her home. Calif. loose near Sunnyside and Fairview. Rustler Heasley caught it and took it to Harold Spears place and tied it up. Wish he'd tie the next one to Ye Editor's doorstep. We're out of points too.

Fire Every Minute
Every minute of the day and night somebody's home or place of business in the United States is destroyed by fire.

RESCUED SON—Mrs. Estelle Fennel holds picture of her son, Lester H., rescued from Santo Tomas camp in Manila.

Fennel Listed as Liberated in Manila

Well-known Sierra Madreans are among those recently liberated from Santo Tomas internment camp, Lester H. Fennel, meteorologist with the Pan-American Airways, his wife and six-year-old son John. Mr. Fennel lived in Sierra Madre many years and attended school here. He graduated from Caltech in '34 and joined the Airways in '37, being assigned to Manila the following year. They expect to return to the States soon.

Mrs. Estelle Fennel, the mother, has a very warm place in the hearts of Sierra Madreans. She owned and cared for the giant Wistaria Vine for many years and made countless friends for the city. Police Chief Gordon McMillan is her nephew.

FIRE FLAMES

The month of March has arrived with its winds. It brought with it some April showers but it has so far failed to bring with it that promised new fire engine. At the time of ordering, the fire truck was badly needed. Now since the arrival of the emergency equipment loaned to us from the State, we feel much better protected. However, we anxiously await the coming of the new truck. So many times has it been promised to arrive that we now disregard any threats. In fact, if it did not get here before the manufacturer of the plated fire engines begins, we may have an unseen benefit. The delay will not be so painful as long as we are in possession of good working equipment such as we now have.

The main intersection of the main drag has been brightened up a great deal by the addition of the new bright white garage built next to the Union Service station. When the nice smooth pavement is added to the front of this garage, it will surely make the grassless and weedy lawn in front of the Masonic temple more conspicuous than ever. Roy Pickett has had his emporium furnished with a decorative yellow paint that attracts attention toward the painted sign that tells us the progress of the War Bond sales. It is always a wonder whether we will meet the quota assigned us.

The lovely rains during the latter part of last week and the early part of this one have been ideal and welcomed by all the fire fighters of the region. The growth of inflammable materials will of course result, but the beauty of the green while it lasts is well worth the worry to follow. If this growth is prevented from gathering around and near buildings or other combustibles, there will be many fires prevented. Many fires are caused by the growth of winter and spring being allowed to stand and dry.

How long will it be before we will be saying, "I can remember when that large field was covered with green grass and spotted with grazing cattle and horses" as we drive down Michillinda Ave. and beyond Michillinda on Sierra Madre Blvd.?

Firemen Twedell and Fred Lew is listened to Chief Heasley complain of getting cold while asleep over the fire trucks last Saturday night. The following night when the Chief again decided to sleep at the station, these kind boys supplied him with a warming pad. It was a very colorful affair and much appreciated by the "boss."

Since Capt. Brown has returned to the "swing shift" at the Hawks manufactory, he has been giving the fire trucks some attention that has helped a lot. The Pierce Arrow will now start much better than ever before. Charlie enjoys spending some of his off time with the trucks. It is hoped that "Cap" will escape the motorcycle craze that has entered and interfered with the dignity of the establishment wherein he "brings home the bacon."

It cannot be said that we didn't tell ya' if you go to bed with a lighted cigarette in your mouth or even in your hand and then wake up to find your bed afire. Or it may be that you will not wake up. Let's keep the FIRES OUT.

Boys are Salvaging Rifle Range Bullets

Two of our local Boy Scouts have selected a novel project for their contribution to the war effort. They are salvaging lead bullets from the rifle range near the Monastery and are donating the results of their work to the War Salvage drive.

These boys are Jerry Wallace, 40 S. Hermosa, and John Ferguson, 154 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. They knew that thousands of soldiers from Santa Anita Camp used the range for practice and figured out where the guns were fired into the cliff and so far have dug out four gallon cans of bullets. They know too just what kind of guns fired them—rifles, pistols, sub-machine guns and 50-calibre machine guns.

The boys are members of Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts and are to be commended upon their enterprise.

Instruction Permit if Learning to Drive

If you wish to learn to drive an automobile, you should get an instruction permit before attempting to learn to drive, admonishes the legal department of the National Automobile club. These may be obtained from the Department of Motor Vehicles only, and it is a violation of the Motor Vehicle Code to operate a car on a public road without either a license or an instruction permit. Any time after 15 days from the day that you get your permit, you may return to the Department of Motor Vehicles and take your driving test.

RATIONING BOARD NEWS

Local citizens serving as volunteer clerical workers at the board this past week were: Cameron Dickinson, Gordon Felts, Mrs. Gladys Ruble, Mrs. Madelyn Pichard, Mrs. Mary Fleming, Mrs. Nettie Everett, Mrs. Harriet Dodge, Mrs. Gloria Hinshaw, Mrs. Grace Conneghan, Mrs. Bess Boyer and Miss Marie Murtin.

Sierra Madre is continuing to make a large, worthwhile contribution to the war effort in the compensation-free services of its several citizens on the Rationing Board. Some of these people have served at least two years and many over two years on an average of three times weekly, footing their own gasoline, tire and automobile expense—a sizable contribution in itself over this long a period. Sierra Madre should be very proud of its soldiers on the home front.

The local Rationing Board takes pleasure in announcing new Board Member, Leonard Haynes of 68 Vista Circle Dr.

PJC Football Captain in New Hebrides

Chief Petty Officer Leslie Miller, former P.J.C. football captain, has experienced many unusual events in the New Hebrides, of which he writes most interestingly to his brothers, Thomas Miller Jr. and Val Miller, and his sister, Edith Noshier. His latest invitation was to spend a week-end with a French family at their plantation. He enjoyed the French cooking but said the newest dish to him was the coconut crab which was served as a cocktail before the dinner. It is a large crab which lives off the coconut trees. "Recently, in camp one of the Army boys brought to my hut a pet monkey which he procured in Saipan. We have a dog about six weeks old and it was a comical sight to watch them play together. In the hut next is a trained parrot. This is really a dog's paradise; almost every hut has a dog and they treat them like children."

Wartime Protection Awards Given at Boulder City

The National Security Award, a recognition of outstanding accomplishment in wartime protection of important properties, was made February 17 to the Boulder Canyon Project in Boulder City, Nev. The award was received by the two power operating agencies at the project, the Southern California Edison company and the Department of Water and Power of the City of Los Angeles. The Office of Civilian Defense of the State of Nevada made the award.

Col. J. W. Leedom, senior field representative of the protection services division of the ninth region of the Office of Civilian Defense, made the citation. H. W. Tice, vice-president of the Edison company, and Samuel B. Morris, chief engineer and general manager of the Department of Water and Power, accepted the award for their respective organizations.

The medicine man went off immediately to hunt green pigeons. How he had learned to manipulate that rattletrap rifle no man will ever know. He had to wind up the lock and then set the wheel spinning and sparks flying in the pan. The gun exploded in his face, tearing his head from his shoulders. Pambo, fearing they would have to account for this misfortune, hurried things along, got the trade stuff in the canoe, and shoved off. They moved out to where little islets dotted the inhospitable Congo.

Several days out and they struck the timber, a confluent of the Congo, and headed the great canoe along the dead water hard by the bank. The paddlers would reach up now and then to knock green eyelash vipers and other brightly colored arboreal snakes from overhanging branches. These were handed back to where the drummer sat with a boiling caldron over a small fire of elephant dung arranged on rocks. He casually lopped off the hissing heads and threw the writhing mass into the boiling water. Soon each paddler was passed his share of this delicacy. When snakes were not found monkey meat was chewed upon from pouches where each man carried a small ration. When it grew dusk the great drum would cease its punting rhythm and the drummer wearily called out "eeya, nasya" whether to go right or left until a camp site was found.

There had been no indication of danger, even though both Pambo and Lembeck were fully aware of the ill-repute of the quarter of the river. The mornings came up with a great steam hanging over the dripping jungle and the heat already made the yellow riverway shimmer. Once in a while the party viewed hippo heads, cruising about with eyes level with the water, watched them pass. Crocodiles slid with a gurgle from their jungle runways into the water. Parrots, said Pambo, usually fly in pairs. Some are hundreds of years old and unfit to cook, being so tough. Gay Flamingoes, egrets, herons, and other water fowl filled the air with strident cries and the whir of wings. Monkeys peeked out at them from interlacing vines like bearded sailors aloft in a ship's ropes.

Late one afternoon they came upon a small herd of elephants sporting in the river. The bull was a huge rogue with great bags of flesh and gigantic scimitar-like tusks which dragged in the water. He screamed at them as he drove his cows gallantly out of the water and to safety. Lembeck charged his rifle with black powder and let fly at the bull, kicking mud from his flank with the ball. He expected the enraged pachyderm to charge the black powder which floated lazily above the water, thus giving the hunter a broadside shot. But the bull crashed into the jungle hurrying on his cows.

"Aye," said Pambo, "we did use black powder in those days. It floats from the muzzle and a bull always charges what he sees in motion. But I like to 'still-hunt' the beast. You sit in a quiet jungle, hear bamboo shoots pop like pistol shots as the herd feeds, and can tell its whereabouts by the digestive rumble of their stomachs. When this rumble stops, look out. It's quiet. Their trunks are up and feelin' the wind. They may charge. Sure, Arab."

Pambo and Lembeck had no more idea of what lay ahead of them than a colubus monkey has of civilization. The river grew steadily narrower and deeper, the walls of dripping vegetation rising up on either side of them. The air was filled with the bright flutter of butterflies flashing in the sunlight. . . .

FILIPINOS HAIL THEIR LIBERATORS

Filipino natives, paddling out in their "banca boats" (outrigger canoes), hail Coast Guardsmen aboard an arriving LST as "liberators." Poorly clad and undernourished from nearly three years of Jap domination, these people, rejoicing in their new freedom, voice the warmest welcome to each new-coming American ship, offering gifts to crewmen and clamoring their willingness to bargain.

C. S. Shippey of Neodesha, Kans., is a guest of his brother, Lee Shippey and family on Toyon Rd. this week.

March 5 the Civic club participated in a reciprocity tea by invitation of Mrs. Edward Irwin, president of the Monrovia Civic club. Mrs. Gerke entertained the members of both clubs with sketches by her unique puppets. Misses Betty Osgood, Gwen Dewey, Frances Finley, Ruth Miles, Virginia Pratt, Rosalie Goodwin, June Eastwood and Dorothy Roberts were among those attending.

Kathryn Dowding, 514 Ramona, is making satisfactory progress at St. Luke's hospital following an appendectomy last Thursday.

Mrs. H. M. Selk, 485 E. Sierra Madre Blvd., is taking upon herself the task of collecting phonograph records to send to service men in hospitals. When the men are able to move around in wheel chairs they are able to play records, which is a great help in passing the hours away. Mrs. Selk says that new or used records of any type will be acceptable and that the records may be left at the Sierra Madre News office and she will see that they are placed in the hospitals.

The Study Group of the Women's association of the Congregational church will meet in the church parlors Tuesday afternoon, March 13, at 1:30. The history of the boundaries of Poland will be explained and other timely topics discussed in charge of Marjorie Adams.

Out-of-town members of the Olsen family who were here for the funeral rites last Saturday of the late Henry Olsen were Mrs. Olsen's sisters, Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Modesto; Mrs. Marie Whitney, Concord, and Mrs. Inez McMillan, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ronald W. Tuttle and son Roderick, 240 E. Alegria, have returned from a trip to Southern Oregon.
